

Two sisters say their mum took their £50,000 inheritance. She was found guilty of fraud and went to jail. The money was from their grandma.

Katherine and her dad took money meant for the sisters. It was to be safe until they were 25, but Katherine used it for herself.

The sisters used to be close to their mum. But after this, they say they can never trust her again. They feel hurt and upset about what happened.

Gemma and Jessica's dad supported them in court. The sisters say they are grateful for his help. They hope to see their money returned someday.

The sisters have found it hard to trust people now. They are trying to move on with their lives. They want to forget their mum and start fresh.

They hope the end of the court case will bring them some peace. They want to leave this part of their lives behind and focus on the future.
