

Soldier F Found Not Guilty

Soldier F was found not guilty of murder from Bloody Sunday in 1972. The judge said there wasn't enough proof to convict him.

Families felt sad but proud seeking justice. They held a silence for victims. Some said Soldier F was too protected; others felt the trial was unfair.

The trial was hard due to old evidence. Some leaders want justice for families. The government wants to help those affected in Northern Ireland.