

The UK will give the Chagos Islands to Mauritius for £3.4 billion, but keep a base on Diego Garcia. Some think it's bad for national security.

Mauritius will use UK money to pay debt and cut worker taxes. Some in the UK worry it may cost more than planned.

The UN says the deal doesn't protect Chagossians' rights. Some want to go home but can't. The deal lets some live on nearby islands.

Mauritius and Seychelles want a deal. The International Court of Justice says the islands should go to Mauritius. Some in the UK disagree.
