

John Booth will stay as boss of the National Gallery until 2029. He started in 2021 and helps run businesses and charities.

People who help run the National Gallery do not get paid. They are picked by special rules. John has not done anything political in five years.