

A Cartier tiara owned by Nancy Astor will be sold in London. It's worth over £250,000. It has diamonds and turquoise and was last bought in 1930.

Nancy Astor was the first woman in UK Parliament. She changed laws like raising the drinking age and lowering the voting age for women.

The auction is on 5 June at Bonhams in London. Nancy Astor wore the tiara in 1931. Bonhams is proud to sell it for the first time in nearly 100 years.