

£250m for Greener Air Travel

The UK is giving £250 million to help make flying greener and support companies like Rolls-Royce and Airbus in creating new plane technologies.

The money will build hydrogen planes and better parts, keeping UK aerospace jobs safe and attracting more money. It supports 100,000 jobs.

Small businesses will get help to make greener planes. This will keep the UK aerospace industry strong and help cut pollution.