

SCI Semiconductors in Cambridge got money to help with cyber security in military systems. This helps make UK defence better.

The project uses CHERI tech to make military systems safer from cyber attacks. It aims to fix software memory safety issues for better security.

DTEP helps small companies bring new ideas to UK defence. DASA and others support this to strengthen the defence supply chain.