

The US and China are talking in London to fix trade issues. They will discuss selling special metals and computer parts. These talks matter globally.

The US and China paused some trade taxes, but both say promises were broken. Talks in London aim to find a better solution.

The US and China are stopping some tech trades. They both want to make a deal that works for them.

Experts say a trade fight might slow world money growth. The OECD says growth could slow. China's exports are not as good as expected.