

10 Year Plan for Better Buildings

The UK will spend £9 billion yearly for 10 years to fix old buildings like hospitals, schools, and courts to make them safer.

They will spend £725 billion in ten years to improve roads, schools, and hospitals, creating jobs and making services better and last longer.

The National Infrastructure and Service Transformation Authority will help make changes and work with others to improve the country and services.