

New Law for Fairness in Court

A new law makes sure everyone is treated the same in court, stopping unfair rules based on race or religion, to make streets safer.

The law says no using traits like race in reports for judges on punishments. Courts can ask for reports in special cases.

The Lord Chancellor says the law stays fair. It applies to England and Wales. Reports are needed unless not necessary.