

In 2020, a 15-year-old girl was strip-searched by police at school in London. No drugs were found. No adult was there to help her.

Police did not follow rules. They searched Child Q without permission. This made Child Q feel upset and embarrassed.

School staff worry about safety during exams. Police might lose jobs if guilty. The panel is still investigating.