

New French Prime Minister Returns

Macron asked Sébastien Lecornu to be French prime minister again. Lecornu accepted to help France and must quickly form a new government and budget.

France has money problems. Lecornu needs help from different parties, but they don't agree on what to do.

Some people, like Marine Le Pen, don't want Lecornu back. If he can't form a government, it might cause more problems for France's weak economy.