

The SS Nantes sank 140 years ago after hitting another ship. Many died, only three survived. The wreck was lost but has now been found.

A diver found a shipwreck near Plymouth with a Cunard stamp. This helps remember those who died.

The shipwreck was found after searching. Dr Bennett praised the dive team. They used clues to confirm it was the SS Nantes.

Mr Robinson has been diving for 35 years. He finds shipwrecks exciting and important. They help us learn about the past and remember lost lives.