

New Rules for Selling Tickets

The UK wants to stop selling event tickets for more than they cost. This helps fans and stops people from making lots of money reselling them.

The government may announce a plan to help fans get fair ticket prices. Some worry it might lead people to unsafe places to buy tickets.

The plan may keep ticket prices fair. Some sell tickets at face value. This is good for fans who want to enjoy events without paying too much.