

Better Mobile Signals on Trains

Project Reach will improve train mobile signals using fibre optic cables, helping people stay connected, even in tunnels.

The project will save £300m, help the UK grow, and improve internet at 12 big train stations. It starts in 2026 and ends by 2028.

The project makes train rides smoother and safer, helping people work and talk to family. It supports better digital services and economic growth.