

Cleaning Up Hoad's Wood

The Environment Agency is cleaning up over 30,000 tonnes of waste from Hoad's Wood in Kent. It will take more than a year.

Criminals dumped waste, harming the area and wildlife. The Environment Agency and Kent Police are working to catch them and have made arrests.

The government wants to stop waste crimes. Use registered waste carriers. If you know something, call a special hotline.