

Helping Salmon in the River Itchen

The Environment Agency helps young salmon in the River Itchen reach the sea by removing barriers and protecting the river from climate change.

The river has changed, making it hard for smolts to travel. The Agency is studying ways to help the river and smolts stay healthy.

Local groups help the river by checking water and learning. The plan protects salmon by improving the river and stopping illegal fishing.