

New School Nurseries Opening Soon

In September, 4,000 new nursery places will open in UK schools, helping families with more choices and saving money on childcare.

The government is spending £370 million to help parents work by offering affordable childcare near home, helping kids get ready for school.

Schools and nurseries will help children by training teachers and giving more money. The government wants every child to have a good start.