

The UK Government is giving £13.6 million to 12 charities to help stop food waste and give extra food to people who need it.

Charities will use money to save food from being thrown away and give it to families and people who need it most.

The Government wants to stop food waste and make sure good food is eaten. They are planning to use things better and waste less.

The Circular Economy Taskforce will help reduce waste in farming and other areas, helping the environment and saving food.
