

New Special School to Be Built

A new special school will be built after a hard year. It was first planned in 2017 but stopped for being too costly. Many people protested.

The council chose to build a new school for children with autism. It will have space for 150 to 250 pupils and cost millions.

Mr Jenkins said the news is a "relief" after a hard year. He thanked everyone and hopes to work well with the council to build the school.