

A Shropshire college helps students with learning disabilities by giving them work experience in a restaurant, garden centre, and hotel.

Less than 5% of people with learning disabilities have jobs. The college helps by teaching skills like serving customers and setting tables.

The college has a hotel for students to learn housekeeping. This helps them with social skills and prepares them for jobs after college.