

Peter Kyle spoke about technology and change. He was inspired by young girls excited about tech at an event in Salford.

The government wants to be quick like a start-up but must keep people safe. They need to balance being careful and trying new ideas.

Peter Kyle says people wait too long for hospital visits and jobs. The government is making changes to help, like using new technology.

New tools will make government services better. They're working with big groups to improve AI and tech for a strong economy and society.

The Prime Minister announced funding for more UK compute power. A new AI centre in London will help understand diseases and improve healthcare.

The UK wants talented people to work in AI. There will be new fellowships and help for students to start careers in AI and become leaders.

Peter Kyle overcame education challenges. He supports taking risks for change. The government wants a modern UK. Everyone can help improve it.