

Pope Meets Movie Stars

Pope Leo met Hollywood stars at the Vatican. He called them "pilgrims of the imagination" and asked them to bring hope through films.

The Pope praised films for teaching and fun. He wants films to talk about violence and poverty, and explore these problems deeply.

Pope Leo said cinemas are important for communities. He asked people to support films. Cate Blanchett gave him a bracelet for those without homes.