

A UN panel wants the UK to change a deal with Mauritius about the Chagos Islands. It stops Chagossians from going home, which the UN says is unfair.

The UK bought the islands in 1968. Chagossians were moved to places like Mauritius. Two women tried to stop the deal as it stops them going home.

The deal gives money to Chagossians, but the UN says it's not enough. They want Chagossians to visit their old homes and keep their culture safe.
