

Finding a New Leader for Inquiry

The search for a new leader for the grooming gang inquiry is taking longer because two top candidates left. The government wants to talk to victims.

The inquiry will find out what happened with grooming gangs in England and Wales, listen to survivors, and find out why it wasn't stopped sooner.

Some want a new group from different parties to investigate. The government is working to fix problems and help survivors.