

Amelie Mauresmo says women's tennis is as important as men's. People are upset because only men's matches are at night, but no women have complained.

The French Open has one night match, usually men's, as they take longer. Mauresmo says two matches would end too late and wants fans to enjoy the show.

Mauresmo is tired of night match questions. She says women's matches might happen at night soon and finds women's tennis exciting with players like Iga Swiatek and Coco Gauff.

Since 2021, only four women's matches have been played at night in the French Open. Mauresmo says they are trying to make good choices.

She wants the French Open to be fun. Even with a big football match, many will watch tennis. They aim to keep fans happy with exciting matches.