

Singer D'Angelo Passes Away

D'Angelo, a famous singer, has died at 51. He was known for neo-soul music, mixing R&B, hip-hop, and jazz. His family said he left great music.

D'Angelo's song "Lady" made him famous. He won four Grammy Awards. Famous people praised him, saying his music will be remembered.

D'Angelo learned piano at 3, got famous in the 1990s with "Brown Sugar," faced hard times, then returned with "Black Messiah" in 2014