

Some shops in Yorkshire still sell banned single-use vapes. An undercover reporter found many stores ignored the new law.

The government banned these vapes to stop young people from vaping. The ban started on 1 June. Shops breaking the law can be fined.

Some shopkeepers sell leftover stock, even if it's against the law. They give discounts, even after having months to stop selling these vapes.

Some Yorkshire shops follow rules and don't sell banned vapes. A council member is sad some break the law. Rule-breakers face big penalties.
