

The UK is giving money for young people to study AI at top universities. This is called the Spärck AI scholarships.

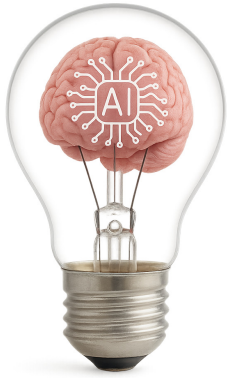

Scholarships cover study costs for UK and international students at universities like Oxford and Cambridge.

Students work with tech companies to gain skills and jobs. The goal is for the UK to lead in AI.

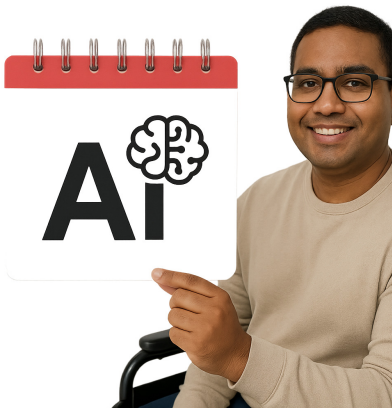

The plan aims to make more skilled jobs, grow the economy, and help students from low-income families.

New fellowships help workers learn about AI. This helps solve big problems.

Universities and companies are excited about scholarships to keep the UK strong in AI and attract top students globally.

Scholarships open in 2026. Students start in October 2026. The government gives £17.2 million for this.